February 5, 2010 – Bel Air, CA - Syd Leibovitch, owner and president of Rodeo Realty, Inc. - Fine Estates, hosted an architectural certification course attended by more than 250 agents as part of Rodeo Realty's ongoing lecture series for 2010.

Taught by Mina Chow, from the USC School of Architecture, the one day course was held at the Los Angeles Skirball Cultural Center. Chow's lecture covered various styles of architecture, famous architects in the area and architecture's influence in feature films.

"I offer these educational lectures to my agents," commented Leibovitch, "because I believe there is always something new to be learned in real estate. This certification gave everyone a better understanding and appreciation of style and structure, and someday, this knowledge may benefit one of their clients."
